EXCHANGE IN BARCELONA

ELLEN PELBY BITTERHOFF

ABOUT

1. Where and when did you study abroad?

I went to Barcelona / Sabadell at ESDI University from September 2023 to January 2024.

2. What KEA program did you attend at the time?

I studied Multimediadesign

3. What classes did you take during your semester abroad?

Art Theory and History 2; Art Theory and History II, spanning the 20th century to the present, was taught by the engaging and passionate Jeffery, who, while using a less structured approach, shared anecdotes and life stories alongside his teachings. The class, emphasizing listening and note-taking, offered a unique and instructive experience, making it suitable for those curious about diverse art movements.

Communication;

Mikki's communication class was fine, focusing on the evolution of communication mediums from painting to social media and emphasizing the designer's responsibility in effective communication. Led by the fast-talking Mikki, the class has an academic orientation with a strong emphasis on debate, offering a fresh perspective but is less practical in nature. We did a podcast with information and knowledge from the class.

Comprehensive Projects;

This class didn't make much sense to me, but it was a class that we did a group project in. It was about how we could make the refugees in Spain feel more included and to have a better life.

Business 1;

This class was about how the structure of a business is. We mostly listened to the teacher, who was also speaking spanish (most people in this class were bad at English so she said everything twice). It was very theoretical, but the next semester with this class would be more practical.

Materials n Technology;

This class was about the making of videos and all the theoretical behind filmmaking.

It was pretty cool - I learned a lot of new editing skills ii use know to make videos.

Design theory and History 2;

This class was again led by Jeffrey. The class, emphasizing listening and note-taking, offered a unique and instructive experience, making it suitable for those curious about diverse design movements. I really liked this class because of the design aspect! We did two different essays in this class.

Projects;

This class was specific for graphic design. We did a few projects where we had free creativity to make your own ideas!

The teacher Pol was a young guy - He didn't have a lot of experience with teaching but was more focusing on giving graphic feedback (which I learned a lot from!!). Very cool class if you like graphic design

Computing 2;

This class was for Interior designers so it was learning about how to draw architectural drawings. We were supposed to be with the audiovisual but they canceled that course. Cool subject, but didn't make much sense for my studies

Litterature and Communication;

This class was about everything to do with RESEARCH. The teacher was again Mikki who was really easygoing with what to do. We had to make smaller assignments to then at the end have a full research on a topic of your own choosing.

The class itself was a little confusing because he didn't explained it very well in the beginning, but it was fine.

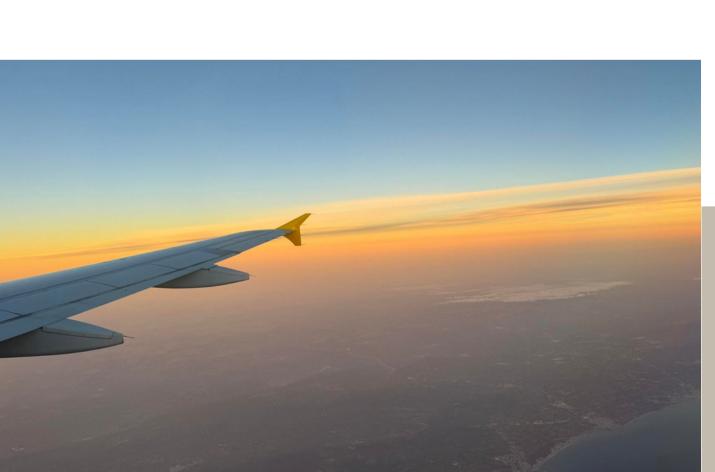

ACADEMIC EXPERIENCE

• How helpful was the receiving school in the process of choosing classes and settling you in?

Super fine. Paula was very helpful with answering questions and I had the chance of getting all the classes I wanted! - if you want to make sure to get the specific classes, fill out everything correctly and with good time to spare.

• What classes/study experiences did you find the most rewarding? Why?

I really liked the course projects because of the teacher was a good feedback giver and because I learned a lot about the graphic aspect of it all.

• What classes/study experiences did you find least relevant or least valuable to you? Why?

I found Comprohensive projects to be the least relevant course because of what it was about. It was more a course about how to work in a group than what the actual product was going to be.

 What classes would you advice other KEA students going to the receiving school to choose or not to choose?

Definitely Materials n Technology, Projects 1(graphic) and Design theory!
